

The Unique Child

Focussing on what really matters

The Herts for Learning Early Years 2021 Conference

This year's on-line conference will explore the impact of positive relationships, unconscious bias and how we provide a curriculum that is best matched to meet each child's unique needs in the EYFS.

Never has there been as much disruption in our children's early education as there has been in the last year. Practitioners and leaders have not been defeated in their quest to do their very best in meeting children's needs.

The Herts for Learning Early Years team are delighted to be welcoming three practising leaders and experts in their fields to share their knowledge and real life experiences of working with children during the pandemic.

Dr Stella Louis, nationally renowned freelance

Early Years consultant will be delivering a keynote on equality, race and unconscious bias by examining pedagogy and values reflected in practice.

Rachel Lewis, Headteacher at Hindley Nursery

School and Children Centre, rated outstanding by Ofsted, will be exploring the importance of attachment and positive relationships with young children to secure their progress.

Lydia Cuddy-Gibbs, Head of Early Years for Ark

Schools and Early Excellence's Hundred Review expert panellist, will be sharing best practice of how best to match the curriculum to the needs of the children.

“Never has there been as much disruption in our children's early education as there has been in the last year. Practitioners and leaders have not been defeated in their quest to do their very best in meeting children's needs.”

Date	Tuesday 2nd February 2021
Time:	9:00am – 1:00pm
Venue / Online	Online conference
Course code	EAY/20/1000/P	Cost	£71
Book online at	https://cpd.hertsforlearning.co.uk/courses/bookings/

For further information, please contact the Events team at training@hertsforlearning.co.uk or call: 01438 845111 (option 2)